How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous distress of functional periodic distress. Since how it may help:

1 Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion. Thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2 Started 3 days before expected time, Cardui should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

THE OLD, BIG STRONG BANK

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Here's to the Women-Folk!

There's a line at the heading of the Woman's Column in my paper that reads:

"Women through the years have stood Keepers of the flame ..."

Pretty easy to see what's meant, whether it's the furnace or the stove or the candle in the window or the feeling of warmth that flow from the heart of the home.

It's the women who are guardians of the things we cherish about homelife—who are diligent about ashes on the rug, the ring on a glass of beer can leave on tabletops, and comfortable but too-worn chair that we can't bear to throw away.

From where I sit, those little matters seem more and more important in this world of ours. Maybe it's because I'm getting from a mellow pipe a glass of beer, a comfortable chair by the fire and the "home" feeling that comes from the voices of the folks—whose tolerance and understanding helps prevent them!

A wobbly gait is one sign of cholera.

1 swine killer lurks in every section of the country, ready to cut unprotected swine herds.

Losses have run as high as 20 to 60 millions dollars a year. Cholera occurs year after year. A good thing about this is that it is a largely preventable disease. If all farmers had their animals vaccinated against cholera, losses would be greatly reduced.

Prevention is the only sure way to combat this deadly enemy. Vaccinate all pigs around weaning time. Consult a veterinarian, he is trained to give the right treatment without risk of cholera losses.

Historic Treaties Are Missing From State Department Files

WASHINGTON — The mysterious disappearance of 75 original treaties from state department files was revealed today by Secretary of State William Benton.

He testified that expenditures subsequent to removal of them never duplicated the amounts—more than $1,000—were missing.

He offered no explanation on the disappearance.

His disclosure came as the subcommittee neared its long-planned end of hearings on the department's operations, centering at the outset on charges of inefficiency and personnel relations, which Benton heads.

Atom Bomb Seen As News Guide

Mighty Weapon Demands New Perspective, Declare Special Writers.

NEW YORK—No proper evaluation of the news today can be made without the atomic bomb as the frame of reference, William L. Laurence, New York science reporter, told 500 students here.

"The worst thing we can do is to allow ourselves to be lulled to sleep behind an atomic Maginot line," Laurence said, speaking to teachers attending a course on "Evaluating the News."

Hanson W. Baldwin, military analyst, who shared the program with Laurence, declared that the atomic bomb had completely changed the problem of security.

Effective Control.

"The paradox of American 'security' in the year 1947 is that there is no 'defense'—using the word in its narrow term," Baldwin said. "Never before has the old aphorism that a strong offense is the best defense been so true."

Laurence said that there could be no security unless the nations of the world could work out an effective method for international control of atomic energy, a method that would make certain that no nation, great or small, could manufacture or possess atomic bombs or the fission-able materials in a form easily convertible into atomic bombs.

"Without such security there can be no peace, no matter what decisions are arrived at around the conference table in Moscow," he said.

What to Do.

Baldwin urged that the teachers, in trying to understand military news, do the following:

"Examine the source of the news, compare the news, beware of censorship, put the military news in perspective against the political and economic background and supplement the news with interpretation, commentary and opinion.

"Never consider military stories purely in the vacuum of that subject alone. Military action can, and often does, affect political action and vice versa, and influence economic trends. Look not only for the military significance of a military story, but also for its political significance.

"Remember, particularly in military stories, that a war department policy, as officially announced and released to the press, does not necessarily reflect the feelings or the opinions of all the people in the army or even a full statement of the facts."

He listed as the two requirements for judging any story, military or otherwise, "a background of solid basic factual information, and an inquiring and even skeptical mind." He said, "Far too many people believe everything they read, with no critical evaluation of it."

United States Discloses It Nipped Nazi Revolt Plot

FRANKFURT — United States army officials disclosed the smashing last July of a secret Nazi sabotage organization known as DPFB.

The saboteurs plotted to overthrow the German civil government, the army said. Their password was "12 carat diamond."

A headquarters communique announcement said the underground network had been wiped out with the arrest of four former high-ranking Storm Troop officers. The four went on trial before a military government court, charged with "acts hostile to the interests of the Allied forces."

The arrests had been kept secret for eight months, the army said, to permit investigation of the organization's ramifications "outside the American zone of Germany."

Black-market dealings financed the plotters, who intended to use secret radio transmitters to call upon the German people to join in the movement, an army spokesman said.

Explosion of Chemistry Set Turns Youth to New Career

COLUMBUS, OHIO — Freddie Renault Jr. 9, decided against future attempts to advance science.

Home from school for several days with glandular fever, he had whiled away the time with his chemistry set. Then the "invasion ink" exploded, setting his room aflame.

After his mother and firemen had extinguished the blaze with only nominal damage, Freddie announced that he would become a tap-dancing teacher when he grows up.

New Radio Frequency Solves Some Technical Problems

MOSCOW. — A new frequency—the fourth and best tried—has enjoyed loudly and clearly the "Voice of America" broadcast to Russia and has partly solved the technical problems of the project, United States embassy officials said.

Munich Radio, which beams the U. S. state department's hour-long Russian-language program into the Soviet Union from New York, tried the 27-meter band and, for the first time, piped in the broadcast with no interference from European stations.

Soybeans Will Hold Own if Given Chance

Industry Making Real Demands for Big Crop

Since America's pioneer soybean processing plant began operations in 1922, soybeans have become a byword in agriculture and industry, ranking as the nation's fourth largest cash farm crop.

Soybeans, when processed, enter largely into three fields of use—farm, home and industry.

Farmers know soybeans as a crop which can be planted late, if necessary, and which brings comparatively high return per acre. They know soybeans, also, as a superlative source of protein concentrates for use in livestock and poultry rations.

Products made from soybeans go into hundreds of food items. Soybean oil is used in production of about 50 per cent of all shortenings. More than 40 per cent of all margarines are made from soybean oil.

The soybeans still produced from nearly 1,500,000 acres is used in making margarines.

One of the subsidiary uses for soybeans is the field of medicine, where soybean oil is used as a carrier in capsule-packaging of vitamins.

The health-giving value of soybeans long has been cried all through the farmers of health foods. These things are secondary to the farmer. Yield and profit per acre and use of soybean oilmeal as a feed have been the farmer's first consideration. If the production of soybean is to continue to increase, all uses of soybeans must be developed and expanded.

Hobby for Collection of Postcards Finds Rarities

WILMINGTON, DEL.—A penny postcard, like a penny stamp, can be valuable if it's rare, if it's old or if it's a collector's item.

One of the country's leading amateur experts on the subject is Mrs. Josephine Newcomer, whose hobby is called deltiology.

Mrs. Newcomer's collection, penny ones or more expensive, ranges from the common "wish you were here" vacation numbers to delicate portraits and outdoor scenes in relief, and others featuring rich velvet, linen and silk. In five years of collecting and trading, she has amassed an estimated 25,000 specimens.
